WHAT TYPES OF PROJECTS ARE ELIGIBLE?

- Projects must be led by a woman-identifying artist
 - Projects must have a focus on environmental issues. Environmental art projects that qualify for this program may focus on the following themes, but are not limited to:
 - Regeneration
 - Eco-social engagement
 - Decarbonization as decolonization
 - Ecofeminism
 - Climate change / climate collapse
 - Systems-restoration
 - Interspecies relationships
 - Natural or built systems
 - Recycling and repurposing
 - Clean energy production
 - Bioplastics
 - The funded project or phase of the project must be completed by June 2024
 - Projects must have a public engagement component that is free to attend and takes place within the grant term (August 2023 to June 2024)
 - Funds must be used to complete the project outlined in the application form. Funds may be reallocated as necessary to complete the project.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

Applications must be in English.

Applicants will need to provide the following information:

- A detailed synopsis of the project.
 - Please give an overview of your project's themes and overall goals.
- Current state of the project and plans for completion by June 2024.
 - While we understand that an applicant's overall project might extend beyond the grant term, we ask that applicants complete a phase of their project, with a public engagement component, during the grant period from August 2023 to June 2024. Please include a narrative or calendar of events/key milestones.

- The environmental and social impact of the project.
 - Please provide a statement detailing how your project directly explores or impacts environmental issues.
 - Plans for public engagement.
 - Please provide a statement detailing the public engagement component in the proposed project.
 - The public engagement component is required to be free, open to the general public, and must be completed by June 30, 2024. Online events are acceptable as long as they are attended by a live audience. The public engagement component must add value to the public sphere rather than solely benefiting the artist's private gain.
 - Biographies of the applicant and any core team members involved in the project.
 - Project Budget.
 - Applicants are required to submit a detailed project budget using NYFA's template. Applicants who do not use the provided template will be deemed ineligible and will not move forward to the panel review.
 - Budgets should outline proposed totals of artist fees, equipment rentals, marketing, and other project expenses and income.
 - Additional space to describe the anticipated use of funds and how they will move your project forward will be provided.
 - Work samples.
 - Representative of the applicant's grant project
 - Can upload up to 5 work samples
 - Work sample descriptions, titles, dates, and timestamps are to be included in the metadata field within the application

EVALUATION CRITERIA

Eligible applications are reviewed and scored by a panel based on the following evaluation criteria:

1. Project Clarity and Feasibility

- The project concept and logistics are clearly described. Key participating artists and collaborators are identified and their roles are clearly defined.
- The timeline and budget are clear and realistic in relation to the project's scope.

- AWAWEAG is seeking to advance existing projects that are already in development. What stage is the project in development and how will the applicant use these funds towards the next phase? Milestones should reflect the progress of the project to date.

2. Environmental Impact and Community Engagement

- The applicant is able to clearly outline the environmental and/or social impact they are trying to affect and how they plan to achieve that impact.
- Does the scope of the project match the goals for impact? Are the goals for impact feasible?
- How are the goals for impact communicated to the target audience? How will the project engage its audience?

3. Creativity and Artistic Merit

- An applicant needs to provide documentation of a sustained commitment to their art practice.
- Work samples should be representative of the applicant's grant project, and applicants must be the originating artists of all work samples submitted.
